And the band plays on

Blinn reunion to attract 400 ex-students, family members

In the 28 years since Larry Campbell became director of bands at Blinn College, more than 2,500 student musicians have marched and played across the Spencer Stadium field.

Next Saturday, more than 200 of them will return to perform once more during a Buccaneer football game. And they are bringing with them more than 200 spouses and children.

Blinn Band Reunion 2000 will highlight the halftime show of the Blinn-Kilgore game as former bandsmen will join the current 115 Buccaneer band members in performing "Them Basses" and the "Blinn College Fight Song," following the band's regular halftime show.

Still referring to his former students as "kids," even though many are already in their 40s and several are band directors themselves, Campbell is visibly enthusiastic when he talks about the upcoming reunion.

"For a bunch of years the kids have been asking for a reunion," said Campbell. "So a couple of years ago we decided to do it and we chose year 2000."

Starting with student records on file in the college admissions office, Campbell sent notices to the former students' home addresses listed in those files.

"Of course, for most of them they aren't at those addresses any more, but in many cases their parents were and we reached them through them," Campbell said.

The band director's success at Blinn has been emphasized by the fact he has had more students earn a spot on the Texas Junior College All State Band every year than any other two-year college in the state. But Campbell is most proud of the fact that many of his former musicians have gone on to become band directors themselves.

"There's Travis Hobson at Walls High School near San Angelo, Charles Sumter at Waco High School, John Jurda at Katy Taylor High School, Jesse Randle at Big Lake High School in West Texas," Campbell said. "There's also Royce Creech at Montgomery High School and Susie Pecht, a Brenham High School graduate; she's at Westlake High School. There are several more.

"And I can't forget Lisa Marquart Veenstra. She was instrumental in getting

From the News Desk --

Campbell family talents recognized worldw

There have been outstanding young people in a variety of vocations come from Washington County.

Scientists, doctors, businessmen, educators, etc.

However, none have been more successful than the talented family of Larry and Karen Campbell.

Charles Moser

Campbell, of course, has been band director and chairman of the fine arts department at Blinn College for a number of years.

You might also recall that Campbell is a talented musician; likewise for his wife.

However, their three sons, Russell, Jeffrey and Steve, have proven to be no less talented and very successful musicians. They have studied and played with many of the finest musicians and orchestras in the United States.

Their outstanding abilities, along with those of Russell's wife, Ami, and Steve's wife, Michelle, were presented in a concert they gave free of charge earlier this week in an effort to secure donations to assist in expanding the band hall at Blinn.

Russell is a 1985 graduate of Brenham High School, the University of Houston and Juilliard School. He has performed with numerous symphonies, including seven years with the Seattle Symphony and the last six years as associate principal trumpet with the Dallas Symphony. Ami, a violinist, has also played with numerous orchestras. She was assistant concert master with the Colorado Symphony.

Jeffrey, a 1988 BHS graduate, is also a graduate of UH and did considerable advanced study in trombone. He has performed with the Houston and San Francisco symphonies and numerous regional orchestras, including the Brazos Valley Symphony Orchestra. He also does extensive teaching in the Houston area.

Steve, a 1990 BHS graduate, attended UH but received his degree from New England Conservatory of Music. He performed regularly with the Boston Symphony and Boston Pops. He and his wife, Michelle, a clarinetist, also played in Spain for two years and later played in the New Mexico Symphony and Milwaukee Symphony and currently serves as principal tuba with the Minnesota Symphony in Minneapolis.

The trio were all-state band selections in high school.

For everyone one who has watched great running backs or pitchers, the talent exhibited by the Campbell brothers ranks with what you would see in the NFL or major league baseball. These guys are big league.

Of course, we don't want to minimize the skills of their spouses — and dad — but it was a special treat to see the three talented Campbell brothers perform here at home after achieving success at such a high level.

There was another ingredient in the concert that helped bring it all together, and that was pianist John Dujka. A faculty member at Blinn, his musician skills in this part of Texas are legendary.

He accompanied the various soloists and did an outstanding job of playing numerous pieces.

He was made an "honorary" Campbell for the night, and in turn, the closing number was a polka in which Dujka joined in the singing.

It is a special treat to see young men and women from Washington County have their talent recognized by the world. That is certainly the case with the Campbell clan.

Hall of Honor Luncheon 10-30-2010

Larry Campbell has been in music education for 43 years and has spent the past 37 years at Blinn College. A Houston Cy-Fair High School graduate, Campbell received a bachelor's degree in music education and a master's degree in tuba performance from the University of Houston, with post graduate studies at Sam Houston State University, West Texas A&M University and Texas A&M University.

Campbell began his teaching career in 1967 as the band and orchestra director at Fannin Jr. High School in Amarillo where he was also the tuba player in the Amarillo Symphony Orchestra. He then directed bands in Galveston and Pasadena before coming to Blinn College in 1973. Campbell spent 35 years as Blinn's director of bands and has been fine arts division chair since 1994. In addition to instructing tuba and euphonium, Campbell organizes music contests including the Annual Buccaneer Marching Festival, music meets for concert bands, and instrumental and vocal solo and ensemble contests.

During Campbell's years, the Blinn music department faculty has grown from two to nine fulltime (and four part-time) employees and attracts 35 to 40 music majors each year. The band program at Blinn College now consists of a marching band, two concert bands and a jazz ensemble. Blinn consistently earns more seats in the Texas Community College Band Directors All-State Band than any other community college in the state.

Campbell and his wife of 45 years, Karen, reside in Brenham.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor,

Those who attended the Blinn College Symphonic Band, Concert Band and Jazz Ensemble Concerts Sunday afternoon were not only privileged to see and hear an excellent program, but witnessed the results of some things that are right with our young people. The program demonstrated the very best in student, teacher and professional musicianship and serves to remind us of what is being done by and with many of our youngsters.

These performances were the results of many years of support and encouragement by supervising parents and teachers and many years of dedication, discipline, study and practice by the students. These young adults have been guided and directed to channel their energies into areas that enabled them to develop individual feelings of self-worth and of being a unique and vital part of an outstanding group.

This should remind us of just some of the things we can do to help avert further tragedies such as those which have recently devastated the lives of too many.
